At the current time The Nanaimo Child Development Centre Building remains closed to the public. Although the Centre is closed for regular, in person interactions, the majority of our programs continue to be operational. NCDC staff have been remotely providing services to our clients since the beginning of the closure.

We are also preparing for a safe reopening of our physical location to the public. We remain committed to the health and safety of the children and families we serve, our staff and the community. Therefore, our reopening plan will incorporate consistent guidelines for in-person services that are in keeping with the guidelines and direction provided by the Provincial Health Office, regulatory health profession colleges, WorkSafe BC, and our Occupational Health and Safety Committee. We are currently working through an internal assessment including considerations for all individuals, employees, workspaces and services.

Before we can begin to reopen, there will be many adaptations required to our procedures and various services that will need to be prepared for and implemented throughout the organization. Additionally, each program will have their own set of requirements to put in place with the relative timelines.

Finally, it is important to note for new families seeking our services, we continue to accept referrals, complete new intakes and work through our ongoing waitlist.

For any general enquiries during this time, please email info@ncdc.com.

We would like to thank everyone for their patience during this unprecedented time. Our team here at the NCDC is dedicated and committed to the families of our community and continually working on new and creative ways to maintain supports and services remotely.

The public office closures are in effect until further notice. Please watch this page for the most current information and updates from the NCDC.
